Dam Bill Out Of Committee By Narrow Margin

Colorado River Storage Project Bill, anathema to conservationists throughout the country, escaped dying in congressional full committee by one vote Tuesday, according to a wire to the Pine Cone from C. Edward Graves in Washington, D. C.

The bill, which includes Echo Park Dam to be built in Dinosaur National Monument, will meet further opposition in rules committee before reaching the floor of the House of Representatives.

Graves, who is western representative of the National Parks Association, with headquarters in Carmel, left for Washington two weeks ago to attend the annual meeting of his association. Since Pine Cone readers are supporting conservation organizations in their fight against Echo Park Dam and the bill was to come up before full committee of interior and insular affairs while Graves was in Washington, he was asked to furnish the Pine Cone with the outcome of the committee's deliberations.

Graves' telegram:

"Colorado River Storage Project Bill with Echo Park Dam in it reported out favorably this morning by vote of 13 to 12. Closeness of vote encouraging for us. Congressman Engle of Second District California voted against us after writing me six weeks ago that he was opposed to Echo Park Dam. If he had voted as originally indicated bill would have been killed. Bill now goes to rules committee where further contest is expected before it gets to floor of House. Our people here optimistic as to final result.

C. Edward Graves."

The bill was approved by subcommittee on irrigation May 3, after stormy hearings since January, by a vote of 12-9. The 12-13 vote in full committee indicating increasing opposition strength is the basis of Graves' "Our people here optimistic as to final result".

Little Rest Room Up Before County Planning Commission

Little Carmel Rest Room is in big time now. It is on the agenda for the Monterey County Planning Commission meeting in Salinas Monday. And it is the Pine Cone's guess that it will give a good account of itself because it is a seasoned veteran in appearances before public bodies.

It was up before the Monterey County Board of Supervisors last week. It was before the Carmel City Council on May 5. And last year it was tossed back and forth all summer long between the Carmel Planning Commission, which frowned on it, and the Carmel City Council which wasn't sure.

It was brought out of winter retirement by the Carmel Recreation Commission in a letter to the city council at the May 5 meeting. The recreation commission pointed out that the south end of the Carmel beach "is used primarily by local residents. The lack of a rest room in this area creates a hardship on these residents, particularly those with children," and concluded with the recommendation that a rest room of "simplified construction be erected near the foot of Thirteenth Street."

Since the foot of Thirteenth

Mrs. E. L. Doheny's miniature pinscher, Ch. Patzie v. Mill Mass, will be out to defend her best-in-show title for the fourth consecutive year at the Del Monte Kennel Club's annual All-Breed Dog Show to be held May 30, at Del Monte Lodge. Shown with Patzie and her trophies following last year's show are judge Mrs. Winifred Heekman, Mrs. Derek Rayne, handler Porter Washington and Carmel's Derek Rayne, chairman of the bench show committee.

With an entry list already exceeding by 200 the record total in last year's show, the forthcoming show promises to be the biggest in its 29-year history. This year's show incorporates six specialty shows as well as obedience trials; all will be held under American Kennel Club rules and regulations.

School Election Today An Opportunity To Compliment Leidig

All bars, liquor stores, and liquor sections of grocery and drug stores in Carmel and environs will be closed today from 7:00 o'clock in the morning until 7:00 o'clock in the evening in honor of Glenn Leidig, who is running for re-election to the Carmel Unified School District Board, uncontested.

Polling places are Sunset and Bay schools.

Leidig has worked hard for the school district, given much of his time, and been a valuable board member. This election gives the citizens an opportunity to show appreciation by a thumping big complimentary vote.

Carmelo School District has two candidates running for one vacancy on their board, Jean L. Thomas and Evelyn L. Meadows. Voting will be from 3:00 to 7:00 o'clock in Carmelo School. The valley will not have to be urged to vote. This is a lively contest.

Bay School Celebrates Diamond Jubilee Saturday

By DAISY BOSTICK

In these days of progressive education, constant demands for more teachers, higher salaries, elaborate buildings, it seems a good time to think back to the days of the little country school, usually ungraded. Bay School was such a one. And the number of solid successful business and professional men and women around here who once attended that school is impressive. A gathering of the clans which constitute the Bay School graduates will be held tomorrow beginning at noon for their annual celebration, but this time it is a very special occasion, for it is their diamond jubilee—the seventy-fifth anniversary of Bay School's founding.

If you drive a short distance down the highway toward Point Lobos you will see a little old-fashioned school house nestling cozily in a eucalyptus grove adjoining the beach. In the year 1879 that school site was a part of a large holding owned by a rancher J. W. Gregg. In true American tradition the pioneers of that day demanded a school, and Mr. Gregg loaned a primitive sort of building on his ranch for that purpose. Ten years later the trustees John Vierra, C. Machado and M. V. Silva were able to purchase the acre and a half on which the school was located for the sum of four dollars and the rancher very generously threw in the building itself for an additional dollar.

There seem to be no official records of the first seven years of the Bay School but for the three years beginning in 1886 the list of pupils is on file at the county seat and there are a number of them around here who remember those early days very vividly. Families such as the Martins, Greggs, Smiths, Machados, Silvas, Sarpas, Vierras, are descendants of those who attended the school in the late 1880's. And there were Polcena Frates, Maude Skinner, Mary Joseph, Manuel de Amaral,

Carmel Schools Present Spring Concert Tonight

Just about everyone in town has a child, or knows one, who attends either Carmel High or Sunset. Therefore, just about everyone in town should turn up at Sunset Auditorium this evening at 8:00 o'clock to hear the fine musical organizations of these two schools in their annual spring concert, presented as a benefit for the Bardarson Scholarship Fund.

The Carmel High School Music Department, directed by John Farr, will feature its orchestra, band and choir, while the Sunset Music Department, directed by Arthur Holman, will have its 30-piece band on hand. They'll offer an interesting and varied program, ranging from rousing Sousa marches to Bach chorales, along with several instrumental duets. Following is the complete program, with the groups in order of appearance.

Orchestra: Menuetto from 5th Symphony, Schubert; Russian Choral and Overture, Isaac; Tunes of the '20's, Arthur Holman.

Trumpet Duet: My Spirit Be Joyful, Bach (Sam Smith and Jon Menand, soloists; Dan Marshall, accompanist).

Sunset School Band—Thunderer March, Sousa; Laureate Overture, Olivadoti; Cachuca, Morrissey.

Flute, Horn Duet: Serenade,

Planning Commission Grants Church Permit To Build On Junipero Site

By BETH INGELS

Following a long and often bitter dispute, the Carmel Presbyterian Church was finally granted a use permit to construct a chapel within the city limits by the Carmel Planning Commission at Wednesday afternoon's open hearing.

Two sites had already been turned down—one on Scenic Drive and the other in the Hatton Fields area. In the latter case, rejection was made by the County Planning Commission, but in both cases strong protests were made by property owners in the vicinities concerned.

The site selected is at the junction of Mountain View, Junipero Street and Ocean Avenue, and the use permit was granted with certain restrictions which include a solid wall at the Torres Street boundary, a partial one along Mountain View and entrance to the church on Junipero. These restrictions were made to safeguard against traffic and parking problems, and also to insure privacy for home owners in the neighborhood, long a residential area.

A crowd of more than one hundred attended the meeting, the majority of them being either church members or others in favor of building the chapel in that area. Attorney Peter Ferrante represented the church group and presented a strong argument in favor of the site, saying that in the first place he felt that the County Planning Commission had erred in rejecting the Hatton Fields site, but that the Junipero Street location, in his opinion, constituted no threat against the "safety, health, comfort and convenience" of the neighborhood.

Ferrante also pointed out that other public buildings had been constructed in residential or C-2 areas with no resulting problems and listed, as examples, the Carmel Woman's Club, All Saints' Episcopal Church, the Christian Science Church, the Legion and Masonic halls and the Girl Scout House.

Floyd Adams was the chief spokesman against the proposed

CARMEL PINE CONE SOFTBALL TEAM WINS TOURNEY

The high-flying Carmel Pine Cone softball team, under the expert guidance of Joe Nicholson and Ky Miyamoto, racked up their ninth straight victory Monday night as they took the measure of the Naval Air Station to win the Pacific Grove Busher's Insurance Tournament. Paced by Bob Updike's power hitting and Johnny DeAmaral's three-hit pitching, the Coners took an early lead against the flyers, saw the lead changed to a 3-3 tie in the late innings, and won the game in the final heat as Updike hit a booming triple, scoring pitcher DeAmaral with the winning run. Updike also opened the scoring for the local nine as he connected for a home run in the opening frame.

In a Saturday night exhibition game against the potent Castroville Dons, the Pine Cone gang showed an indication of their class by downing the always-tough Dons, 4 to 3. This game was a pitching duel between Jim Morton of the Pine Cone and Bucky Moore, veteran Castroville hurler. Each pitcher gave up six hits but the cluster of blows garnered by Art Harber spelled the difference and swung the game for the Pine Cone. Harber helped himself to a solid three-for-three, driving in Dick Weer with the winning run in the sixth canto.

Tonight the Pine Cone goes after win number ten when they tackle the strong Lavetts outfit from Seaside. Jim Morton, ace fireball artist, will toe the slab for the printers in this one, with Johnny DeAmaral ready for fireman duty in case he is needed. Art Harber and Don Canham will be ready for duty behind the bat, Henry Meyers will man the initial station, Walt Frey and Gene Vandervort make up the keystone combination, and the ubiquitous Updike guards the hot corner. Coach Nicholson has a fly-chasing corps of Newt Goodrich, Myron Branson, Marty Hansen and Dick Weer ready for outfield patrol.

PADRE NINE JOURNEYS TO HOLLISTER THIS AFTERNOON

Hoping to snap a two-game losing streak, the Carmel High varsity baseball team makes the long trek to Hollister this afternoon for a league clash with the second-place Haybalers. A win for the Padres won't elevate them much in the league standings but will eliminate Hollister from contention for the flag and practically assure the pennant for Pacific Grove. In their first round meeting earlier in the year, the Padres shellacked Hollister by a 14-2 score behind the superb pitching effort of George Hunter. However, Hunter will not be available for today's clash as doctor's orders send him to the sidelines with arm trouble. Bill Powell, stylish right-hander, will draw the starting assignment today with Dick Jennings and Mike Mosolf available for duty should the stubby curveballer run into trouble. Craig Chapman, one of the most improved players in the league, will handle the catching chores. Paul Fratessa, first base, Jim Konrad, second-base, Mike Mosolf, third-base, and Bob Michela at shortstop round out the Carmel infield. Outfield starters will be Don Leidig, leading Carmel hitter, West Whittaker, and Dell Redding.

While the Padres and Haybalers are having at it in the season finale, Gilroy will be matching bats with Pacific Grove, and the Gonzales-King City feud will be waged in the valley. King City and Hollister still have a chance to overhaul Pacific Grove, but they will have to post victories in this week's games to keep their chances alive.

	Won	Lost
Pacific Grove	6	2
Hollister	6	3
King City	5	3
Carmel	4	5
Gilroy	4	5

PADRES DROP LEAGUE TILTS TO GILROY, PACIFIC GROVE

Victimized by the terrific batting power of both teams, Carmel High's varsity baseball team dropped a pair of league games during the past week, losing an 8-6 decision to the Gilroy Mustangs and dropping a 13-10 slugfest to the rampaging Pacific Grove Breakers.

The Padres made good use of their three hits against Gilroy, parlaying three singles and six walks into 6 runs, but spotty Carmel pitching couldn't throttle the big bats of Tony Vigna and Bob Mazucca. These two Mustang long ball hitters connected for damaging triples to drive in five Gilroy markers. George Hunter, Carmel's ace right-hander, started on the mound but had to retire after four innings when arm trouble crept up on him. Bill Powell took over the hurling job in the fifth frame and pitched creditable ball in the relief role. Gilroy's win over the Padres evens the score for the current season as the Carmel lads edged the Mustangs, 5 to 4, in an earlier meeting.

A real old-fashioned hitting donnybrook was dished up in the Pacific Grove game as the Breakers made good use of the long ball to overpower the local preps. Bob Lopez, a 190-pounder with muscles in his eyebrows, took an especial liking to the Carmel pitching, hitting a four-master with the bases loaded and lashing out two doubles to drive in a total of 7 runs for the PG cause. Besides fattening his batting average with a solid 3 for 4, Tom Hoy, PG catcher, turned in the fielding gem of the game, making a sensational catch of a twisting foul fly while falling into the bleachers. Craig Chapman, with 2 for 3, led the Carmel hitters as he connected for a three-bagger with the bases full of Padres. Bill McCormack and Mike Mosolf also upped their hitting averages by helping themselves to a pair of safeties in three chances. Bill Powell and Mike Mosolf toed the rubber for the Padres but neither had much success in missing the Pacific Grove bats.

JUNIPERO SERRA SLATES HOLE-IN-ONE TOURNAMENT

With all the proceeds going to the athletic fund, Monterey Junipero Serra High School is sponsoring a gigantic hole-in-one tournament at the Kirkwood Driving Range, starting Thursday, May 27 and ending Monday, May 31. Firing for the ace on Thursday and Friday will take place from 4-10 p.m., Saturday, Sunday and Monday from 1-10 p.m. The Kirkwood Driving Range is located on the Salinas Highway adjacent to the Monterey Airport entrance.

Junipero's ambitious athletic program has been a refreshing addition to sports on the Monterey Peninsula and fans will find this an excellent opportunity to have some fun swinging a golf club, win the grand prize (14-foot freezer) and many other assorted prizes—maybe, and lend a hand to keep the fine Junipero athletic program on the road.

TWO CARMEL TRACKMEN AT BERKELEY MEET TOMORROW

When the outstanding high school trackmen of Northern California gather at the University of California tomorrow morning, Carmel High's Ken Barker and Mike Mosolf will be on hand to make an effort for places in the varsity broad-jump and the lightweight high-jump. Both lads earned the right to compete against

"Speeders" speed up line patrolling. Many of Pacific Telephone's long distance lines must cross rugged country that's hard to reach on foot. But in cases where out-of-the-way lines parallel a railroad, telephone crews often patrol them in specially designed speeders like the one above. Summer or winter, these handy little vehicles click off mileage in a hurry, hustle men and equipment to make repairs when they're needed. By saving valuable time, they help us cut costs, hold down the price of telephone service. Pacific Telephone works to make your telephone a bigger value every day.

Swan's One Man Show

By DORA HAGEMEYER

There is a fine little group of paintings by Russel Swan in the alcove room of the Carmel Art Gallery just now. One is immediately impressed by the achievement of the light in these paintings. It falls cleanly and purely on field and tree and building, outlining the forms against the more diffuse background. All colour values are enhanced by its gleam and the familiar objects are lifted and transferred into living surfaces for its reflection.

The White Barn, reminiscent of many happy tours up Carmel Valley, is painted with a fresh clean technique and an excellent arrangement of natural and created forms. The group of sheds and farm buildings lying within the circling curve of the road seem brought together by happy chance. The fresh light on the grass gives a translucency to the surrounding field and seems almost to reflect back on the face of the building. Several farm and barn pictures appear in this group, and everywhere there is the same feeling for texture, mellowed colour and light.

Two lyrical springtime pictures with their free alert treatment of blossoming trees against the massive blue of the hills catch the airy gaiety of the time of flowers and renewal.

The paintings of Monterey wharf with the pattern of boats and the movement of water, the amusing litle crooked buildings on the pier and the long white lines of the purse seiners reveal the artist's appreciation of the contribution of industry to art. From the commonplace to the subtly beautiful is but a step if taken through the vision of the artist. All this familiar material, the river wash, striped shadows, ranch houses, fish lying agape on their cream and brown background, still life and flower studies —the well-known subject-matter of the painter, but always new, always exciting and different when seen through the eyes of those who grasp the essential and know how to present it.

Forest Theater Play Readings

Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock there will be the last of the group play readings at the Forest Theater Guild workshop. This group reading will be supervised by Cole Weston who has an extremely interesting number of plays for the evening.

Hebert Heron supervised the group readings play on May 18.

Refreshments will be served as in the past at the end of the reading.

The Crookstons Show Work In Exhibit At The Carmel Library

The May exhibit in the Carmel Crafts Guild case at the Carmel Library, is the work of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Crookston. The Crookstons have come to Carmel from Utah where he has been retired from teaching "Shop" in the Salt Lake City schools. In earlier years Mrs. Crookston also taught. It was Mr. Crookston's leadership and skill which made him the guiding hand in construction of the crafts buildings at the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

Their craft work, done only for recreation and pleasure is of two general types: the woodwork, both lathe turned and hand carved in common but luxurious woods is Mr. Crookston's, while Mrs. Crookston proves versatile in the use of design and glazes on her hand-formed ceramic pieces. Of special interest is the ceramic table lamp with a base of turned redwood burl.

The Crookstons are members of the Carmel Crafts Guild and are members of the Carmel Adult School Ceramic Class under Mr. Ernest Calley.

The show will run until June 4, 1954.

Nationally Known Local Photographers In Show At Kurland's

Infinity, a show of the art of photography, opens with a preview on Saturday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock at the Kurland Gallery, 585 Oceanview Boulevard, Pacific Grove.

The work shown expresses the great art of Edward Weston, Larry Colwell, Wynn Bullock, Ruth Bernhard, Brett Weston and Dodie Warren.

The show provides a rare opportunity for the Monterey Peninsula to view original prints which have received national and international recognition.

Gallery hours are from 1:00 to 5:00, Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, the show to run through June 22.

Musical Art Club Announces Annual Student Concert

Saturday evening the Musical Art Club will present a number of talented young people in the Annual Student Concert. The program has been auditioned by a group of disinterested judges and the committee promises an interesting session to the club members. The Woman's Club house is an ideal setting for this event, being conveniently located and well equipped for such a presentation. A large attendance is expected as previous years have proved the occasion to be one of the favorite programs of the season. The doors will be open at 7:30 o'clock and the program starts at 8:00.

Terese F. Stuart

Mrs. Terese Frances Stuart, wife of the late Dr. Henry Waldgrave Stuart and a Carmel resident for the past 16 years, died Tuesday in a sanatorium near Redwood City. She had been in failing health for some time, and had been under treatment in and around Redwood City since leaving Carmel in March.

Mrs. Stuart was an enthusiasic worker in the Carmel Women's Democratic Club, which she helped found in 1936. In addition to holding office in the club, she had served on numerous committees and projects and in recent years was known as the club's "elder stateswoman". She was also a member of the Monterey Peninsula League of Women Voters and the Carmel Red Cross.

She was born Teresa Waters in Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, in 1873. She was graduated from the University of Wisconsin where she was affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, and subsequently taught school for several years in her native state. Her marriage to Dr. Henry Stuart took place September 12, 1905. After two years' residence in Lake Forest, Illinois, the couple moved to California and Dr. Stuart joined the faculty of Stanford University; at his retirement, in 1936, he was chairman of the university's department of philosophy and the author of several outsanding volumes on philosophy. Dr. and Mrs. Stuart moved to Carmel two years following his retirement, in 1938, and participated in community life until Dr. Stuart's death in 1951.

Mrs. Stuart leaves a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Hanson of Redwood City, and a son, Arthur Stuart, of Carmel and San Francisco, and four grandchildren.

Private funeral services will be held this morning in Oakland, followed by burial in the family plot. The family requests that no flowers be sent.

Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock in Sunset Auditorium, Carmel Adult School presents Harry Timmins of Hollywood and Carmel in the fourth demonstration in the Artists at Work series. He will develop and assemble illustrations for movie publicity. The major part of his time is now given to the preparation of publicity for the motion picture industries, particularly Universal-International.

Mr. Timmins studied art in St. Louis, Chicago, New York and Paris. In Chicago in 1923 he joined with a fellow artist, Frank Young, to found the Chicago American Academy of Art, an institution that today is one of the largest and best non-endowed art schools in America, in which many of the best artists of the country train.

For many years he illustrated for Colliers, American, Woman's Home Companion, Ladies Home Journal, Cosmopolitan, Pictorial Review, and some Canadian periodicals as well.

Mr. Timmins, who now spends about half of his time in Carmel, is the father of Mrs. Donald Teague.

All interested are invited to attend. Children accompanied by an adult are welcome.

Seaman Wallace on Carrier

Navy seaman Ervin A. Wallace, whose wife, Joan, lives in Carmel, is serving aboard the escort aircraft carrier USS Rendova in the Far East. Wallace's ship left the homeland last December, and since then has called at various Japanese ports. In April the Rendova put in at the British colony of Hong Kong on the southern China coast.

Bay School Celebrates Diamond Jubilee Sat.

Lupe Serrano and Joe Matteis. Joe Hitchcock came all the way from Pebble Beach. Four of the Horn family traveled back and forth from Carmel on the back of an old gray mare. As the years went on there came the Hattons, Victorines, Allans, Kodanis, and Eatons. And now scattered all over the peninsula are the children and grandchildren even to the fourth generation of those small fry who probably dangled their legs from benches in the Bay School between fifty and seventy-five years ago. Mary Goold, born Mary Machado, says she still winces at the thought of the scratching of her slate pencil. And she remembers that several times a day a bucket of water was brought into the schoolroom and passed around amongst the children with everyone using the community tin cup.

Those who attended the Bay School have always saved a special place in their memory books for the teachers and still speak of them with affection. Some of them in the very early days were Mrs. B. Lalande, Mrs. Frank Estrada, Mrs. Delia Beauchamp and Miss Maude E. Porter who later became Mrs. Tom Work. Bess Reed and Mary Miller are also remembered. The late Fred Feliz, so well known and respected by the peninsula people, taught there about the turn of the century. And Julia Breinig of Monterey was also one of the Bay's teachers.

John Martin, then owner of the Mission ranch, was trustee in 1891. He contributed ten children to the roster of the Bay over a period of years. In those days the salary paid to the teacher was $60.00 and the janitor was paid $3.00 a month. A public-spirited resident subscribed $55.00 for the purchase of an organ in 1900.

The pupils of Bay School always had fun. There were programs of folk dancing, songs, acts, baseball, dramatizations of historical events, picnics on the beach. And to these, the present day teachers have added lessons in social living, discussions of current events, student body meetings, educational movies. The school has always been right out ahead in scholarship and can hold its own with any school in the county. The present teachers are Mrs. Guy Stohr and Miss Sally McPhail who not only strive to carry on the old traditions but who adopt the best of the modern methods, and try to make the Bay School dear to the hearts of the present pupils as it was to the pioneers of long ago.

State Senator Edward Tickle, former owner of Highlands Inn, always took great pride in the little red Bay School in his district. He says: "I used to go out of my way to show it to visitors and to tell them it was one of the lone remaining symbols of a rapidly vanishing American institution." When the schoolhouse had a fire which burned a hole in the roof, the whole building had to be repainted and the Senator envisaged a nice fresh coat of red paint. But when next he saw it, he was irked to find that it had been painted green.

The Bay School has now become a part of the Carmel School District. But regardless of this change of authority or whether it is red or green or some other color, the alumni will meet tomorrow to tell nostalgic tales of the good old days. Joe Hitchcock may tell how when the floods came he had to swim the river to get to school and Carmel Martin will probably relate how his parents insisted on the children wearing shoes and of how they (the kids), hid them under the bridge until their return at the close of the day. And some of the women may remember that on stormy days, when they got a soaking on the way to school, the teacher gave them dry clothes which she kept in stock for such occasions.

Congratulations, Bay School alumni, on your diamond jubilee!

30 Local Apprentices Receive Their Completion Certificates

Teachers, employers, state officials and their wives honored 30 graduating apprentices at a dinner at San Carlos Hotel Tuesday night. There were about 150 in attendance.

"California has an apprenticeship program second to none anywhere, and when you receive your certificate of completion, you are graduating from the highest vocational institution in the nation," W. H. Jamison of Pebble Beach, President of Bay City Iron Works, and a member of the state apprenticeship committee, as a representative of the metal trades, told the new journeymen, in the principal address of the ceremonies.

"Join your union," he urged them, "pay your dues, be good members, and above all, attend meetings, serve on committees, and keep yourself informed. Do not sit back and let your union officials run your union affairs to suit themselves, because they may not run them to suit you."

Jamison's address was preceded by a symposium in which A. L. Robertson was master of ceremonies; John Grisin spoke as labor representative; Gordon Beall, as management representative; William J. Krebs, as apprentice representative.

There was a musical interlude, David and Dick Gayman singing to Lucy Valpey's accompaniment.

Apprentices who received certificates of completion—

Brick masons and tile setters: Lyle Cornelius, Norman E. Jones, Sherman S. McGavin, Robert J. Wallace.

Carpentry and mill & cabinet: Richard Ciandro, John Somer Corson, Harold S. Erickson, David E. Gayman, Dick Gayman, Harold H. Houghton, William J. Krebs, Irvin G. Rush, Gene H. Vandervort, Clyde Whitaker.

Electricians: Marion Edward Abraham, Jr., Ralph Games, Jr., Melvin James McFillen, Ray M. North, W. E. Reynolds.

Meat cutters: Albert Estabrook.

Plumbers & steamfitters: Richard Chapin, Warren S. Hodel, Robert A. Mullnix, Francis L. Roberts, Albert D. Sexton.

Typographical: Frank Bausone, Newton G. Goodrich.

Individual firm programs: Glenn L. Akins, Dry Cleaner; William R. Borba, Optical Technician; Henry G. Thilenius, Saw Filer.

500 Attend Gay Woods' Festival

An estimated 500 parents and guests joined Woods School in celebrating its Spring Festival on Wednesday of last week—an event held annually in honor of the school's fourth grade, which next year graduates to Sunset.

The program, held on the school's sunny lawn, began with a royal procession and the crowning of the May King and Queen, fourth-graders Teddy Leidig and Jane Skillman. Other fourth graders served as members of the royal court, with Harold Faulkner doubling as Lord High Chamberlain and master-of-ceremonies, and Linda Paplow contributing capers as court jester.

Each of Woods' classes presented a special number, beginning with dances by the kindergarteners under Miss Fronsa Thayer. Mrs. Katherine French's first grade did a dance of greeting, while Miss Doris Latham's first graders gave their interpretation of the Teddy Bears' Picnic. Folk and square dances were performed by the two second grade groups of Miss Elizabeth McCrea and Miss Barbara Weis, with third graders of Mrs. Marian Douglas following up in an Indian dance.

Finale of the program was the traditional Maypole Dance, performed by the fourth graders; special participants were two fourth grade mothers, Mrs. Roy Larson and Mrs. William Giles. Members of the fourth-grade Royal Court were Jimmie Meadows, Pat Bein, Terry Martin, Marilyn Marten, Marguerite Smith, Leslie Champe, Roberta Romas, Patricia Parkinson, Ann Giles, Lynnea Larson, Kathy Getz, Barbara Zarp and Linda Paplow.

All hands adjourned for a picnic lunch on the lawn following the program. The festival ended after classes, when the dad took on their sons in a softball game.

HI CHATTER

By Susan Nutter

Six CHS biology students have entered the Future Scientists of America contest. This is the third year that Carmel students have entered. The contest is sponsored by the National Association of Science Teachers and the American Society of Metals to helping students choose careers in the field of science.

The following students entered their projects: Bill King, growth of Monterey pine seedlings; Howard Roloff, weather reporting; Susan Nutter, basic soil science; Kyrk Reid, progress report on his culture of pseudomonas; David Tobiasen, a study of blood; and Jim O'Dell, his collection of mammal skins.

The awards will not be announced until September.

Five students from Carmel High attended the CSF Regional Convention at Campbell Union High School last Saturday. Acting as spokesman for the group was Jeanne Fratessa, president of the local organization. Priscilla Clark, Roger Newell, Cynthia Cox, and Ann Dorwart also spoke. Mrs. Elise Beaton, the local sponsor, made the trip with them.

Come to the Bardarson Spring Concert tonight at 8:00 o'clock at Sunset Auditorium. The tickets are selling fast — 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for elementary students. The high school band, orchestra, and choir, and the Sunset band will perform. Everyone is urged to come to this wonderful concert because the proceeds go to the Bardarson Memorial Fund, which is a fund for lending money to students who need the extra help to get started in college.

And So To London . . .

By ASTRID SISSON

The train from Copenhagen to Esberg was crowded, the eight passengers in my compartment being a mother and her son, he returning to England to continue his education at the University of Oxford; a couple on their way to England after having lived in Australia for eighteen years, both anxious and apprehensive of what might lie ahead; a Burmese professor from the Department of Oriental and North-African Art and Culture at the University of London, who had spent the summer in Copenhagen, at the invitation of the government, arranging the Library of Copenhagen's collections of Oriental art objects and books. Others in the compartment were a man and a woman, not together, who seemed to be eating the whole time, and made me wonder anew why so many people eat so much on trains; and I was there.

The train took us across the island of Zealand, on which lies Copenhagen on the eastern coast, to the island of Fyn, which was crossed, and over to Jutland, attached in the south to Germany and a peninsula containing the largest acreage of Denmark. Crossing Jutland to Esberg, we found Kronprinses Ingrid at anchor waiting for us, and we boarded her for London. At one point only was the train ferried across the water.

A very short time after the train left Copenhagen, six of the eight passengers in the compartment had a conversation going as lively as when old friends meet and give an account of themselves: Where did we come from? How long had we been in Denmark? How did we like the Danes? Did we see such and so? The Australian couple asked anxious questions of what to expect in England, for the English like the Scandinavians, know the art of understatement or complete silence when it comes to trouble, which make those who love them often surmise the worst. The Burmese professor and the student had their own interests comparing life and teaching methods as practiced in the two universities. The mother and I spoke of many things that interested us, and later had some delightful days together in London, sightseeing. The rail trip seemed of an hour's duration instead of the five hours consumed in crossing from Copenhagen to Esberg.

The train stopped within a few yards of Kronprinses Ingrid so there was no chance to see Esberg, youngest of the Danish cities. The ship was the sister ship of Kronprins Olav, on which I had crossed from Oslo to Copenhagen and had the same up-to-the-minute facilities, and comforts and good food. On ship board was continued the companionship started on the train, and to the original six were added a young Danish woman whose home was in Kensington, a professor from Oxford University and his wife. We sat at the same table at meals, walked the deck together, and when evening came and drove us indoors, we asked and answered innumerable questions about the six countries, which at least one of us knew intimately.

The weather was grey but not cold, and the crossing smooth and mainly enjoyed for the good companionship and fine friendliness of fellow travelers and officers, and the delicious food. Having crossed the North Sea, we moved slowly up the Thames in the fog; the shores barely discernible and resembling a cut-out of grey paper pasted against a deeper grey. A gap in the fog once revealed the startling sight of a crane and a smoke stack hanging in mid-air with no visible support, and once a house hung like a magic vision in the air, illuminated by a vagrant ray of the sun; but the fog closed in on it, and left one with a feeling of having things withheld without reason.

The ship seemed to feel its way along the river bank, but the fog grew less dense as we progressed up the river. We landed in a twilight grey, somewhere between four and five in the afternoon the day after we had left Copenhagen.

Going through the customs in London was as painless as going through the customs in any of the countries I visited in Europe: a few questions asked, a quick look, which may be called a searching look at your face, and it is done.

The first five days in London were spent with two members of my family to whom London had been home until they were bombed out; one of them the closest relative I have. Most important to us was being together, so we spent the days talking, having tea with friends, dining well, going to the shows, and doing the things we all like to do. The outstanding plays in London then were "The Living Room," "Carrington V.C." and "The Confidential Clerk." On my return to London, after a visit with the same two members of my family at their home in north of England, I saw the premiere of "The King and I" at Drury Lane, with Anne Leonowens playing the governess, and Herbert Lom the king. The play was received with enormous enthusiasm both by public and critics, the latter predicting a run of at least two years. "South Pacific" had also played at Drury Lane, with many another play from The States. The English call these "musical plays."

After we spent five delightful days in London, my family returned to their home in north of England, and I moved into less expensive quarters in the Cumberland Hotel, which, I had been told, was the best buy last summer in hotel accommodations in London.

For about $3.50 I had a comfortable room and bath with breakfast consisting of fruit juice, porridge with hot milk, bacon and an egg with toast and a tiny pat of butter and plenty of marmalade, and a pot of coffee with hot milk.

A great many people from the States stayed there, among them two girls I had met a number of times in Norway, where they had enjoyed themselves so well that their return ticket had been turned in for cash, and they had stayed on as long as they possibly could. Now, from London, they were bombarding their father for money to get home, but their first letter was answered with an invitation to walk home. While they waited for their father to soften, they had to find more reasonable quarters. I had the addresses of a number of pensions, but they were so far out that the difference in price hardly seemed worth the move. Then a friend mentioned two ducal palaces on Russell Square which had been converted into hotels, but their prices were only slightly less than those of the Cumberland, so we continued looking, as there were more than a dozen hotels and pensions in and around Russell Square, which is only a few minutes by underground from Piccadilly Circus, and considered by the Londoners the center of central London. A hotel half a block off the Square and a block behind the University of London was their choice. Here they had two comfortable rooms on the second floor, which the English call the first floor, with hot and cold water and radio and breakfast exactly as I had it at the Cumberland. Across the hall were numerous bath rooms with an attendant on duty twelve hours a day, and no limit on baths. For this each paid seventeen and a half shillings or 17/6 as the English would have it. They had connecting rooms, as being two in a room cost exactly the same.

Seeing them settled comfortably and urging them to continue their daily letter to their father, I began sightseeing in earnest.

Almost any hotel clerk can furnish any information desired except how to do London inexpensively. He can furnish the names of the gay night spots, where prices equal those of New York. He can get guest cards for the clubs at a very reasonable price, where a fair to good dinner may be enjoyed with intermittent dancing, and a very gay time may be had with one's

CALIFORNIA PALMS

The crisp, glaciate palm trees
Tissue their malachite rift-pleats
In supple sea wind,
Like great pristine jade-lit fans
Enwrought with spectacular brocades
Smooth-floraled, plicated as coral-tracings of sea,
Brocades hand-woven with decors from green tropical islands.

Fans, finished, turned in the dexterous American way,
With the most amazing peacocks streaming light
Down every spray in their sectional cordage,
As they spritely brisk, radiating variations
In sea-puffed pearl of winds.

And the jade-staves of their interlacings
Crinkle with sharp sound of rustling silk
Till all the boulevards undulate
Against the purple-blue sky with fans,
With a multiple of green, cool-waving
Fans, fans, billowing deep, cool blades of sea
Into thick-heated inland to lance the checkered air.

TO ROBINSON JEFFERS: HIS COUNTRY

Still the wind blows,
Though the hills stand quiet.
Unending here the trees bend,
Plumed heads to the storm.

The headlands and the hills
Have their roots in the granite core;
Over them the winds pass,
Transient as mist.

The trees have their span,
Grow old and die in the storm;
The hills know nothing of withering
Or of flowering.

With the peace of headstones
Rooted in granite they stand,
Unmindful of the seasons,
Of the trees in the wind.

—A. VALLANCE

WOODLAND MOMENTS

I move within this emerald wood,
Sharing once more the brotherhood
Of sun and cloud, of sky and leaf,
Hearing the wind sob out his grief.
A wondering child, I gaze on these
Rooted citadels, the trees,
I lay my hand upon the bark
Of these leaf-covered patriarchs,
Letting their strength from rain and sun
Shed a healing benison,
Feeling the sap of faith, a flood
Of wonder tingling through my blood!
Moments woven of wind and sky
Touch my heart and flutter by!

Conservation On The March

A Weekly Column by
C. Edward Graves
Western Representative,
National Parks Association

Several years ago I reviewed for the Pine Cone a book by Fairfield Osborn entitled "Our Plundered Planet". Mr. Osborn is President of the New York Zoological Society and of the Conservation Foundation, and is in the forefront of the conservation movement in this country.

Many people called this book an alarmist book and refused to be impressed by it. The theme of the book was that unless we wake up to the fact that our natural resources are rapidly vanishing through wasteful and unscientific practices, we face a critical food supply in the future and perhaps even starvation.

Mr. Osborn has now written a follow-up book entitled "The Limits of the Earth". His publishers say that it is intended to guide public thinking along new and more constructive lines, although he still takes issue with "visionaries of plenty, whose belief in the capabilities of science and technology seems to have outrun the realm of practical possibilities".

The significance of the title is contained in a sentence at the beginning of the book: "Man is becoming aware of the limits of his earth". Until recent years the tendency has been to think that there was no limit to earth's resources. Under those circumstances why should there be any necessity to practice conservation? Making money out of these resources was the principal object of mankind's activities. With the speed-up of communication and transportation we have rather suddenly come to realize that the earth is after all rather small. There are very few unexplored sections of it remaining. Therefore our thinking as to natural resources should be radically revised and turned inward instead of outward.

Mr. Osborn devotes most of his book to an examination of the possibilities of the less populated regions of the earth for food supply and for supporting emigration from the more populated sections, especially Great Britain and Europe. The approaching end of colonialism heightens the urgency of this problem. He introduces the subject by quoting a report of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization that only five countries of the world are capable of producing more food today than their populations need: Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Argentina, and the United States.

A chapter on the United States comments on the somewhat startling report of the President's Materials Policy Commission in June 1952, which projects our economic picture up to 1975, a period just around the corner for most of us. He then devotes several chapters to a discussion of the possibilities of South America and Africa as sources of food and other resources. Of the Amazon, often thought of as a great reservoir of these resources he says that "the sobering realization of the perennial inability of the people already there to feed themselves well thrusts itself upon us". Of Africa he says: "The first faint words regarding it are already being written on the books of future time. They read: The African will take his land for his own".

The population problem seems to concern him most and his last chapter revolves around it. Population pressure is indeed behind all need for conservation practices. It is particularly behind the problems now arising in setting aside and holding against encroachment a very small amount, not over one percent, of the surface of this country for the enjoyment of recreationists and for the perpetuation of a small bit of our primitive landscape. Most of this landscape is unproductive, so far as material refreshments are concerned, but it does offer us an unmatched source for the refreshment of the spirit, which is equally important.

MPC CAMPUS NEWS

By Allene Knight

Student Body elections were held on Friday and the following were elected: Don (Fritz) Myers, president; Rudy Martin, vice-president; Carolyn Hamilton, secretary; Tom McMillan, commissioner of finance; Randy Reinstedt, commissioner of rallies and assemblies; Carol Stromberg, commissioner of social affairs; Cherie Addenin, commissioner of publications; and Richard Forrester, commissioner of athletics.

El Paisano, the MPC yearbook should be on campus by June 1 at the latest. They will be sold for $2.00 with a student body card and $4.00 without a card. The staff for the yearbook was: Sandra Wright and Jim Angier, co-editors; Rudy Martin, sports editor; Pat Curran, photography editor; Laurel McQueen, artist; and the staff photographers were Bob Blaisdell, Ralph Hamilton, Dick DuBrau, Ray March, Jack Hilgers and Oyar Kratins.

The Hogan Club has set a new goal in order to promote assistance to men students who need financial aid to continue their higher education. This semester is the first time they have offered their $200 scholarship for a graduate with at least a 1.5 grade point average, and of sound and sincere character. Applicants will be selected by a committee of three Hogans, their advisor, Mr. Dale Nelson, and Dr. Calvin Flint. The winner will not know until the time of graduation.

Since these dinner clubs come and go and their popularity ebb and flow, it would be foolish to give addresses here; the clerk can furnish information about the older, established clubs, too. If one wants to dine elegantly and be certain of the best food, the hotels Claridge, Savoy, and Park Lane, the last less expensive but very nice, have good food, beautifully served.

Meet Candidates For Superior Judge At Democratic Tea

Guests at a tea to be held Monday by the Carmel Women's Democratic Club will have an opportunity to meet local candidates for office, particularly those seeking county jobs. The tea will be held at the home of Mrs. Edwin Tucker, Camino Real and Sixteenth at 3:00 o'clock.

The candidates' list includes the three men who are running for Superior Court judge, the only contested office for a county office. They are Stanley Lawson, Salinas attorney, Judge J. A. Jeffrey, Salinas Municipal Court judge, and David Gill, Pacific Grove attorney. All are write-in candidates, a circumstance made necessary by the recent death of Judge H. G. Jorgensen.

All persons interested are invited to attend the tea.

Gas and electricity are cheap in California

The Hamptons, newcomers to California, were pleased to discover that all their appliances cost less to operate here.

Their P.G. and E. bill in one month was $8.47

Where they used to live, the same amount of gas and electricity would cost . $10.01

Why not take full advantage of California's low rates for gas and electricity—by putting the money you save into more timesaving, work-saving appliances. Enjoy better living for yourself and your family!

"My big new refrigerator-freezer does double-duty for just 84¢ a month!"

"I was really surprised when I found out how little it costs to run my wonderful new refrigerator-freezer combination. Imagine running a big refrigerator with all the new features like moist cold and automatic defrosting—plus the spacious food freezer—for just 84 cents a month! And the rest of our appliances are just as inexpensive to operate."

League Holds Annual Meeting

The League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula held its annual meeting last Thursday at Rancho del Monte Country Club.

Mrs. Robert McDonald, president, reported that the recent convention at Denver chose as national study items for next year: the relationship between individual liberties and public interest, and support of U.S. trade policies that will help solve national and international economic problems.

Officers and directors for the next club year will be: Mrs. Robert McDonald, who took over the office of president in January following the resignation of Mrs. Donald Abbott, was retained as head of the local league. Others elected were Mrs. Edwin Bliss, vice-president; Mrs. Wright Fisher, second vice-president; Mrs. Edward Campbell, recording secretary; Mrs. Homer Martine, treasurer; Mrs. Leon Edner, corresponding secretary. New directors are Mrs. Adrian Bennett, Mrs. Calvin Cope, Mrs. Donald McKenzie, Jr., Mrs. J. B. Spellar, Mrs. Julian von Meier and Mrs. John Wardman.

Mrs. Peter Ferrante was chosen representative for county council. Named to the nominating committee were Mrs. Howard Clark, Miss Katherine Flanner and Mrs. Charles Stanyan. Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Cope, Mrs. von Meier and Mrs. Wardman were chosen to represent the Monterey Peninsula League at the state convention this week in San Diego.

Abernethys to Convention

Mr. and Mrs. John Abernethy are off for a weekend trip to Pasadena, where Mr. Abernethy will attend the annual bankers' convention at the Huntington Hotel. They plan to join forces with two other couples bound for the same event: Mr. and Mrs. Axel Holm and Mr. and Mrs. Roland Tavernetti of Salinas. While the bankers are meeting, Mrs. Abernethy will take advantage of the opportunity to visit her brother, Charles Cunning, and niece Mrs. Clarence Dwiggins and family, all of whom live in the vicinity of Pasadena.

Last weekend the Abernethys had as their houseguests, Col. and Mrs. Harry Lancaster of Chicago, who are en route to the colonel's new assignment in Frankfurt, Germany. The Lancasters have a number of friends here, as they lived for several years in Carmel during the war.

Anne Ferrante Weds Tomorrow

Tomorrow afternoon at 3:00 o'clock Angela Anne Ferrante, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Ferrante, will exchange wedding vows with John Henry Bourquin of Grass Valley at an informal ceremony in her parents' home.

Members of both families will witness the rites, which will be read by Dr. Harry Clayton Rogers of the Carmel Presbyterian Church. The bride will be given in marriage by her father and attended by her younger sister, Alice Virginia.

For her bridal costume, Anne has chosen a dainty, full-skirted frock of delf blue lace complimented by a tiny hat of pink straw with a wisp of veiling; she will carry a cascading bouquet of pale pink cymbidium. Alice, who graduates next month from Chadwick School at Rolling Hills, will wear a bouffant dress of rose pink and will carry a bouquet of darker pink cymbidium.

Among the members of the bride's family who will be present at the wedding and reception are Anne's grandmother, Mrs. Erasimo Ferrante of Monterey; Mr. and Mrs. John Lomanto and Joseph Lomanto, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dillenback, and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Ferrante and Harry Ferrante, all of Monterey; Mrs. Paul Territo of Redwood City and her daughters, Paula and Marilyn; Mr. and Mrs. Jerome T. Light of Stockton and Alvin Light of San Francisco; and Anne's great aunt, Mrs. Jerome B. Thomas of Palo Alto.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Barton J. Powell, and his sister Miss Janet Powell will come from Grass Valley for the ceremony. Also representing the benedict's family will be his grandmother, Mrs. J. B. Thorne of San Carlos, his great aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Thorne, and uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thorne.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Bourquin will postpone their honeymoon trip until June, following the benedict's graduation from the Russian department of the Army Language School. They plan to spend part of the summer at Lake Tahoe, where they will occupy the summer home belonging to Mrs. Powell; after that, their future—at least for the next year—is pretty well in the hands of the Army, which has assigned John to duty in Alaska.

Prior to her engagement, which was announced this February, Anne was studying at the University of California; her future husband also attended U.C. before his enlistment. A 1950 graduate of Carmel High School, Anne received her Associate of Arts degree from Palos Verdes College. A number of her school friends were present at a bridal shower given in her honor last week by Miss Barbara Sapsis of Berkeley, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perc B. Sapsis, make their home here.

Linne Bardarson to Marry

Linne Bardarson and Miss Dorothy Edna Day of Seattle will be married on June 12 at Sand Point Community Church in Seattle. The reception will be held at the chapter house of the bride's sorority, Alpha Xi Delta. The young couple met while attending the University of Washington.

Linne is the son of Mrs. Gertrude Bardarson and the late Otto J. Bardarson, former superintendent of Carmel schools. Both he and his brother, Baird, went through grade school here and attended Carmel High before the family's move to Seattle. He has completed his first year at the University, where he is affiliated with Theta Delta Chi fraternity. At the moment, he's skippering a salmon boat in Alaska.

The bride-elect, a senior in the art department at the University of Washington, is the daughter of Captain and Mrs. Vernon Edwin Day. The Day family is originally from New York, and her father, a captain in the U.S. Coast Guard, is stationed at present in Seattle.

The couple are planning a California honeymoon — possibly to Carmel — following the wedding, and then will spend the rest of the summer working Linne's boat in Alaska. This fall they will both resume their studies at the University, and will make their home in Seattle.

Other good news in the Bardarson clan is that Baird, the oldest boy, is expecting to receive his M.D. in June of 1955; his wife, Peg, graduated from the University of Washington in March. Their twins are just two years old.

D.A.R. Annual Meeting

The home of Mrs. Samuel B. Moore was the scene Tuesday evening of the annual meeting of Commodore Sloat Chapter, D.A.R. Annual reports were heard from the Regent, Mrs. Frank La Cauza; Mrs. Frank McKay, committee on national defense; Miss Elizabeth Merrill, registrar; Mrs. W. T. Moore, neighborhood center; Mrs. Fenton Grigsby, Americanism and D.A.R. manual for citizenship; and Mrs. Moore, press relations chairman.

Mrs. Marcia de Voe, on behalf of the chapter, awarded D.A.R. Good Citizenship pins to Jean Hurlburt of Pacific Grove High School and Mary Neff of Monterey Union High School. Robert Phillips, cellist, presented a well-received musical program. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. W. T. Moore, Mrs. J. K. Paul, Miss Ellen Frink and Miss Genevieve Reed.

Skoogs' Second Son

Latest little deduction for Lt. and Mrs. Joseph Skoog is a new son, Mark Christopher, who was all of two weeks old yesterday. Despite Mark's Navy affiliation (Lt. Skoog is at the Naval P.G. School), the Army graciously presided at his debut, which took place at Fort Ord Hospital; a middleweight, Baby Skoog weighed in at seven pounds, four ounces.

Already on hand to show Mark Christopher the ropes are his six-year-old sister, Sherri Ann, and a 13-month-old brother, Todd. Lt. Skoog's mother, Mrs. J. L. Skoog of Seattle, is here to help out with her new grandson. The baby's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Kuebler, also make their home in Seattle.

Panhellenic Tea Sunday

All girls graduating from Peninsula high schools and junior colleges have been invited to the Monterey Bay Panhellenic tea this Sunday from 3:00 to 5:00 o'clock in the Fiesta Room at Casa Munras.

The tea, first event to be presented by the newly-formed Panhellenic organization here, will help acquaint the college-bound girls with the role of sororities in campus life. Speakers at the tea will be Mrs. Harry W. Kelly, alumnae executive secretary of the Panhellenic Central Office in Berkeley; Miss Lila Sankowich, president of college Panhellenic at the University of California; and Miss Marjorie McKenzie, vice-president in charge of rushing at U.C.

Margaret Rigdon Makes Fybate

Former Carmelite Margaret Rigdon is one of 91 members of the senior class at Stanford University just elected to undergraduate membership in Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic society. Margaret and her fellow Fybates will be initiated at an open meeting of the Stanford chapter Saturday evening, June 12, in Cubberly Auditorium, when the annual Phi Beta Kappa address will be given.

Margaret, the daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Jonathan M. Rigdon, attended Carmel High School until 1947, when she transferred to St. Xavier Academy in Chicago. She will graduate from Stanford this June. Col. Rigdon is now serving with the Army in Japan.

Enter Future Admiral Murray

The latest addition to the third generation of an all-Navy family was commissioned last Friday at Peninsula Community Hospital in the person of a fine baby boy, the first son for Lt. and Mrs. Stuart Murray of Carmel. The Murray's firstborn, who displaced seven pounds, 12 ounces on arrival, has been named Stuart Grant, Jr., after his dad, a student in the Electronics Department of the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School.

Right now small Stuart Junior's rank is baby, first class, but his promotion seems imminent with two admirals for grandfathers: Rear Adm. G. W. Bauernschmidt of Clearfield, Utah, and Rear Adm. Stuart S. Murray of Washington. Both Mrs. Bauernschmidt and Mrs. Murray are here helping in the welcome of their new grandson, as is an aunt, Mrs. Thomas Brittain of Pacific Grove, whose husband, Lt. Brittain, is also at the Navy School here.

Marcia Kuster Home for Visit

Marcia Kuster, who has been in Salt Lake City studying ballet under Willam Christensen at the University of Utah Ballet Theatre for the past year, is home for a week's holiday at the Carmel Valley home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Kuster.

The Kusters had the thrill of seeing Marcia in performance recently, when she was chosen to participate in the week-long ballet festival in Salt Lake City — an event which featured such guest stars as Andre Eglevsky and members of the San Francisco Ballet Company. In addition to dancing with the corps de ballet in all three of the festival productions (Les Sylphides, Romeo and Juliet and Old Vienna), Marcia was named understudy for several of the principal ballerinas —a considerable distinction, even though the scheduled performers unhappily remained sound of wind and limb and not in need of replacement.

Following the ballet festival, Marcia accompanied her parents to Taos, New Mexico, for a visit with Mrs. Kuster's father, John Young-Hunter. Ted Kuster and Marcia made the trip home together this week and were greeted here by her brother, Colin, who's been managing the Playhouse in Ted's absence. Mrs. Kuster plans to remain a while longer in Taos with her father, who is ill.

On her return to Salt Lake next week, Marcia will take part in the city's annual spring festival of opera and musical comedy. This year's productions are Verdi's Aida and Rogers' and Hammerstein's Oklahoma, and Marcia will be in the ballet numbers of both. On completion of the festival, the ballet theatre will start work on its Christmas production of The Nutcracker, in which Marcia also expects to participate.

Her rising success with the Christensen ballet seems to be fulfilling the promise displayed by Marcia in her numerous ballet appearances here, when she studied with Joanne Nix at the Carmel Ballet Academy. A graduate of Carmel High School, Marcia also studied ballet under Adolph Bolm, with Svetlanova in San Francisco and with Sybil Marion in Berkeley. Before entering the ballet theatre at Salt Lake, she worked with the American School of the Dance in Hollywood.

Farewell for Swiss Visitor

Mrs. Albert Kunstle of Geneva this week completed a three weeks' visit here with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Pierre Kunstle. On Wednesday Mrs. Kunstle boarded a plane for New York, where she will visit with friends for a fortnight before returning to Switzerland and home.

A "bon voyage" gathing in Mrs. Kunstle's honor was held on the evening prior to her departure at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Baird in Carmel. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Howard Benedict, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Kunstle, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Krotozyner, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Feek, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bayless, Mrs. Barbara Krieger, and Larry Rose.

the cream of the crop by placing in the NCS divisional meet at Sunnyvale last Friday night. Barker, a senior track star who has lettered for three years, has threatened to reach the 22-foot mark several times this season and is conceded a good chance to finish in the money at Berkeley. Mosolf, a skinny sophomore with a best of 5-7 this season, will have to improve at least two inches in order to compete with the lightweight jumpers representing Santa Rosa and Eureka high schools.

Varsity performers who place in tomorrow's meet automatically quality for the State Meet which is slated for May 28. Lightweight competition terminates with the NCS Meet as the small fry are not invited to the State Meet.

PRIVATE SCHOOL GOLF TOURNEY

The first annual Northern California Private School Golf Tournament was held last Friday at Pebble Beach, with the Robert Louis Stevenson School as host. Team honors went to the Menlo School for Boys, with Stevenson School placing second. Two teams from the Tamalpais School in San Rafael scored third and fourth places.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

That spiritualization of thought and action is necessary for real progress will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Soul and Body."

The following passage will be among those read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Mortals must gravitate Godward, their affections and aims grow spiritual,—they must near the broader interpretations of being, and gain some proper sense of the infinite,—in order that sin and mortality may be put off" (265:5).

From the Bible will be read the following counsel given by the Apostle Paul to the Corinthians: "Now we have received, not the spirit of the world, but the spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God" (I Corinthians 2:12).

The Golden Text is from II Corinthians: "What agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God" (6:16).

Planning Commission Grants Church Permit To Build On Junipero

site, said that he felt the character of the neighborhood, part of the old "Eighty Acre" tract, would be changed by such construction. The traffic situation, he pointed out, could become extremely dangerous as well, particularly at Ocean Avenue. He used as a case in point, the application for the Carmel Playhouse for a use permit and said property owners in the vicinity had been largely in favor of a permit being issued. Now, he said, there is a nightly parking problem in the area of the theater and the residents there realized that only too late. All angles should be discussed at length, he felt, while there was still time to cope with problems which are bound to arise.

The Forest Theater, he pointed out, constituted a traffic problem, but only a few times a year. If it were a nightly occurrence, or even a weekly one, a highly dangerous problem would be evident.

Dr. Pyron McMillen, Presbyterian member of the Comity Commission of Northern California Council of Churches, answered certain questions brought up by planning commission members, and said that in the case of the one mile separation of churches recommended by the Northern California Council of Churches, latitude in the rule had to be given in many areas because of the physical aspects of each community involved. He said he felt sure that approval of the Junipero site would be given at the next meeting of the church group on June 4.

The property had been owned for a number of years by W. L. Hudson Jr. and Charles A. (Chuck) Fuller and was sold to the church at an undisclosed price. The church also owns property on Dolores Street at Eighth, but this site was deemed unsuitable because of its proximity to the Church of the Wayfarer on Lincoln.

The majority of those in the area who spoke before the planning group was in favor of the new location and their remarks were often interspersed by applause. Objectors to the site based their opinions on future traffic problems and pointed out, in one or two instances, that the number of tourists each year is increasing and will continue to, thereby creating a more and more complex traffic problem.

The motion to grant the use permit was made by Dr. J. F. Williams and was seconded by Clarence Bates. Commission members then had a lengthy discussion on restrictions to be included in the amendment to the motion, all of which were accepted by Ferrante as spokesman for the church. Another point in the amendment was the clause which states that church officials work closely with the planning commission "for the construction of a church seeking not more than 250 congregation." With the inclusion of the amendment, the motion was carried unanimously. Commission members are: Dora Comstock, Donald Craig, Florence Josselyn, Gladys Kiplinger, Dr. Williams, Bates and George Willox.

Following the passage of the motion, Dr. Harry Clayton Rogers, who is to be pastor, spoke a few words of thanks to the commission and the others who had worked in behalf of the group.

Wayfarer Auxiliary

Flute solos by Patty Clapper accompanied by Corliss Myers at the piano opened the meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of the Wayfarer on Tuesday afternoon. Patty played Siciliano and Clair de Lune. Devotions were given by Miss L. Lucile Turner, with special reference to religious work among migrant workers in California. Mrs. R. Clay O'Rear, program chairman, president in the absence of both president and vice-president.

Dr. K. Fillmore Gray, minister of the church, installed the new officers elected in April. They are Mrs. Philip Livingston, president, who was not present; Mrs. O. R. Neff, vice-president; Mrs. Rollo H. Payne, secretary; and Mrs. R. C. Cairns, treasurer; Circle leaders: Mrs. Henry R. Bell, Mrs. Charles C. Torrance, Mrs. John R. Christie, and Mrs. Maud Sutherland. At a business meeting in the forenoon the Auxiliary adopted a new constitution, but deferred forming by-laws until fall. In the absence of either presiding officer, Mrs. C. W. Robinson, a former vice president, conducted the meeting. A salad luncheon was served by Circles One and Four during the noon hour.

In addition to discussing their general platforms, congressional candidates have been asked to speak briefly on procedures of the federal budget, with possible reforms for simplification; assembly candidates will discuss reorganization of the state government and alcoholic beverage control; and other candidates will speak on legislation pertinent to their office. A question and answer period will follow.

Mrs. John Wardman, as Voter's Service Chairman for the League, is in charge of the program. She is assisted by League president Mrs. Robert McDonald, Miss Orre Haseltine, Mrs. Edward Campbell, and Mrs. Julian von Meier. Members of the Carmel High School Junior Statesmen will serve as pages and ushers for the program.

Street is near the county line, it occurred to the council that the rest room might be located just out of the city limits and the county be persuaded to help pay for its construction. City Clerk Peter Mawdsley was instructed to write the County Board of Supervisors about it, which he did. At their meeting the following week the supervisors passed Little Rest Room on to the County Planning Commission. They will be asked to appoint a representative to confer with a representative of the city council as to location and cost sharing.

If the county is willing to cooperate, it is the Pine Cone's suggestion that the county engineer be delegated to draw up plans for it and not the Carmel Planning Commission. Forced against their will to produce plans for Little Rest Room last summer, Carmel Commission presented the council with a $5,000 stone cottage that everybody in Carmel wanted to set up housekeeping in the moment they laid eyes on the sketches.

The Time Has Come .

By Kippy Stuart

Recently, a very good friend asked me why I appeared to be so discouraging in this column. From her view point I seemed to be in the negative more often than in the positive. My answer to that question is: that attitude is exactly what my job in the Pine Cone happens to be. To help new gardeners from making the thousand errors possible in this locality, is the duty that I accepted years ago for The Time Has Come.

The casual person has not the slightest idea the helplessness of new residents, whose one idea is to reproduce their Eastern or mid-Western gardens on this Peninsula. There is an abundance of flora indigenous to our Pacific coast that is entirely unfamiliar to new residents, hence they lean toward the old familiars of their erstwhile homes. I try to be of help to these persons, for after all, new residents need help far more than those who have established themselves, and dollars to doughnuts, many of these established gardeners know far more about local horticulture than I ever hope to know. One is not a resident of Carmel . . . that is, an Old Timer, without thirty or forty years back of them, and my own fifteen years in Carmel gardens makes of me the neophyte.

Plant pathology is a science all by itself. The University of California maintains an entire staff just for the purpose of telling students what NOT to do. If you could walk with me through any number of Carmel gardens and see the wrong method many hopeful newcomers have been struggling with, you would weep with me in my sympathy and my eagerness to help.

And then . . . just think of all my own mistakes! It took me years to catch on to the zany garden conditions around Carmel. I've come a cropper so many times and through experience I have learned that most of the failing gardens start at the roots. Soil conditions differ from one block in the Village to another, and those of us who are suffering with solid clay soil know the tedious and patient work it takes to make the ground friable. To stick a valuable plant into soil that has not been conditioned is a crime against nature, and few spots in local gardens are blessed with perfect soil.

Tree roots, weaving through a garden, prevent plants from maturing, and if you want to see for yourself what one pine tree can do take a look at the arroyo in front of the Carmel Laundry. That pine tree has lept across the arroyo to establish roots in foreign territory, and 'ell and high water cannot prevent that pine's determination to exist. Everything in its way has to go, and it is wonderful to see the determination of that one single pine.

The smoother the ground is on the top the more danger lurks beneath. One has to dig and dig to discard all the unwanted stuff and stuff beneath the surface. I have had several close calls with pine roots on the surface that were hidden by underbrush. There they lie waiting for the gardener's foot. I've contacted several in my work, and I have learned to watch for accidents going somwhere to happen.

WOMAN'S CLUB GARDEN SECTION TO MEET MONDAY

The Woman's Club Garden Section will have its regular meeting Monday at 2:00 o'clock at the clubhouse. Speaker will be Arthur Hyde of Hyde Nursery in Watsonville, who will talk on The Modern Trend of Garden Design, with particular emphasis on new plants and shrubs available today.

Guest chairman for the program will be Mrs. C. C. Brockman, who has just completed two years as president of the Monterey Peninsula Garden Club, and is an officer in the California Garden Clubs, Inc. Tea will follow the program, and all members and their guests are invited.
